Senior Mental Health Leads Training Programme
Our Senior Mental Health Leads training programme will support you to develop a mental health strategy based around a whole school approach.

Leading mental health in a school is not something that can be carried out in isolation, you will need to draw on other members of the school community to make promoting positive mental health part of the embedded culture in your setting.

Collaborate with senior leaders from other schools

This new leadership programme in Scotland will support you to develop a whole school approach to wellbeing and mental health.

The programme will support you to identify your school’s needs and priorities and build strategic approaches to address these. You will develop your own leadership within the frame of positive mental health, and collaborate with senior leaders from other schools.

The programme incorporates two bespoke consultations with qualified clinicians, where you can bring up to 5 members of your school staff team to work together on your strategy.

Our qualified clinicians will assist you in uncovering your mental health priorities, and creating an ethos to support mental wellbeing in your school and your community.

"The course has been so valuable to us as a school and to me as the headteacher. It has once again put a spotlight on what we already do to support mental health and wellbeing at our school but also what we can improve. The group on the course have formed very strong and positive relationships which have arisen from a common bond: a drive to improve outcomes for all of our children."
